concerned with contempt and ridicule. Speaking of the charges against Mrs. Bassett and Mr. Hunt while at Atlantic City, Mr. Davis argued that absolutely nothing had been shown to substantiate those charges. Reading the much-quoted passage from Hunt's letter to Mr. Stone, Mrs. Bassett's friend, in which Mr. Hunt compares Mrs. Bassett with "the purest, cleanest gold on earth and heaven, which has been refined by fire, where poorer stuff would only leave ashes," Mr. Davis said that "this is either the product of a pure, clean mind,

"The President has set up a man of ham, one of the California delegation From an ethical standpoint, what he says unds very nice, but he has failed to apreciate conditions as they exist. So far s the use of the military forces of the country are concerned, I do not think that he can coerce the sovereign State of California, if the State has acted within er rights, as we firmly believe she has. seems to me that while the President is well-meaning in his purposes, he s especially unfortunate in the use of misapprehended the situation, and has allowed his feelings and his high regard for the Japanese as a nation to run away with him. In my opinion, there will never be any decision which will hold that we have violated any treaty which this government has with Japan. As to citizenship for the Japanese, we are all unalter ably opposed to such action; that matter is a long time off. We need legislation to restrict the right of citizenship, rather than to increase it. There is no sentiment anywhere to increase the number of races which should be admitted to citizenship. It is is now generally held that the extension of citizenship to the negroes after the civil

"I do not think that part of the message relating to the Japanese will be very well received in California," said Representative Knowland, "and it is a mighty fortunate thing for our delegation that this message became public after the election rather than before. We have simply segregated them, and have denied them no rights guaranteed them by the treaty Japan. It is unfortunate that the President has not a better understanding of the situation as it exists in California.'

Mr. Hayes, who represents, in part, the city of San Francisco, said: 'If San Francisco or the State of California had violated any treaty which the Federal government made with Japan under the Constitution, then the President would be justified in using the military forces at his command to enforce to-day: treaty rights; but we have violated no Resolved, That in the opinion of the Senate, thi

Just what the procedur will be cannot be learned, but the admin stration hopes that when the case is finally through the courts the whole affair will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Position of Administration. The exact position of the administra tion in the Japanese school matter was made clear for perhaps the first time today. The government here holds that rights of Japan because of the most favored nation clause in the treaty of the language which he employs. He has 1894, which gives to the Japanese rights of residence equal to those extended to the citizens of any other country. It is declared that so long as the school authorities in San Francisco grant other foreign children-German, French, Rus or any other nationality-the right to attend certain schools, that same privilege must be extended to the Japaese by virtue of the most favored nation clause in the treaty. It is said that the Californians are not compelled to educate the Japanese at all, but it is necessary for them to do so while citizens of other nations are enjoying the privi lege of the public schools. The right of residence is held to carry with it the right of education. The ad ministration lawyers seem quite clearly of the opinion that the Japanese have not been denied the right of education altogether, and they know that separate schools have been given them; but it is held that the discrimination because of race is a violation of the treaty. If the Californians were to pass a law prohib iting the entrance into the schools of any foreigners, the Japanese could readily and lawfully be excluded, because under such circumstances the citizens or sub-jects of no other nation would be receivng better treatment than the Japanes It is not known just what course the government will pursue in bringing a test case before the courts of San Francisco It is thought likely, however, that some Japanese parent will be procured to appeal for an injunction asking that the school authorities be restrained from ex-cluding his child from the schools, on account of the rights guaranteed by the existing treaty.

Senator Rayner's Resolution,

After reading the President's reference to the Japanese question, Senator Ray-ner, of Maryland, offered the following treaty rights; but we have violated no treaty rights. The treaty in question does not give the Japanese the right to be educated in the same schools with the white children. This right is not given to some of our own citizens, for the Southern States have been upheld in Southern States have been upheld in this subject or in any way interferes with the right to some of the white and cal-

Southern States have been upheld in their segregation of the white and colored children. Japan has no right, under treaty or otherwise, to regulate our school system, and I contend that any treaty which would give her that right would be unconstitutional."

Senator Perkins said: "I agree with the sentiment in the abstract expressed by the President just as any patriotic citizen would, but I do not agree with him the jurisdiction of the United States are not with whom the question may arise, that the public educational institutions of the States are not within the jurisdiction of the United States, and that the United States has no power to regulate or supervise their administration.
